Roy Lichtenstein (1923 - 1997, USA) - "Save Our Planet Save Our Water" (1971) This piece features an image of fish with the title below. Plate signed, screen print and photo offset lithograph in colors on smooth wove paper. Measures 32" x 23" unframed and ships free in the USA. Roy Lichtenstein is one of the most famous pop artists in the world. Best known for taking images from comic strips and blowing them up to huge formats, he elevated comics into an art form, and drew both praise and revulsion from comic book fans. Lichtenstein was born in New York City. From 1961 on he started working in his familiar style, adapting comic and cartoon characters in his paintings. Later in his career, Lichtenstein started working in a more abstract style and became more socially conscious. His painting 'Save Our Planet, Save Our Water' (1971) made a stance against pollution.
